Academic Law Libraries Special Interest Group (SIG)

Background:

The Academic Law Libraries SIG was formed to support the shared interests and knowledge of CALL/ACBD members working in academia by creating a network of communication between SIG members; and by sponsoring annual CALL/ACBD conference programs that directly impact the working environment of SIG members and CALL members in general. The SIG communicates with its members through CALL e-newsletter In Session and via the Academic SIG listserv. Members are strongly encouraged to participate in on-going discussions on our listserv and to give input on program ideas in order to foster the benefits of being a member of this SIG. Members have the opportunity to meet face to face at our annual general meeting held in conjunction with the annual CALL/ACBD conference. New members are welcome to join the SIG at any time. The SIG is managed by two co-chairs that rotate on a staggered two year term assignments.

Mandate:

- To support the work and cooperative projects of Academic Law Libraries;
- To provide a forum for communication between academic law librarians; and,
- To organize conference programs which are of interest to CALL members in academic law libraries, and to any other interested CALL member in general.
